9th Annual Conference!

Land Use Law

Substantive Information and Practice Tips

September 14-15, 2006 • Hyatt Regency Hotel • Tampa

$100 Discount for Government Employees!

Featuring Speakers From:

- Florida League of Cities
- Florida Department of Community Affairs
- Alachua County Attorney's Office
- Florida Gulf Coast University
- ... and some of Florida's top land use law practitioners!

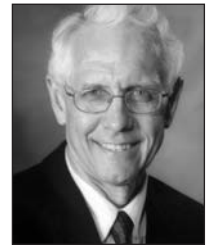

Dear Colleague,

Whether you are an attorney, developer, consultant, planner or government official, your success in the field of land use requires preparation, practical "know-how" and a current knowledge of the law and government policies. Any person involved in land use in Florida will benefit from this year's speakers' experiences and insights.

For this Land Use Law Conference, we have assembled a group of professionals to discuss what's new in legislation, municipal discretion in decision making, the latest on Florida's new "pay-as-you-grow" requirements for transportation and school concurrency.

The information and practice tips that you will learn at the Conference will be invaluable to you. This is a professional opportunity you won't want to miss!

We look forward to seeing you there.

Program Co-Chairs

Robert C. Apgar practices primarily in land development and growth management law. In his 26 years of practice, he has represented landowners and developers seeking a full range of land development approvals, from local zoning and site plan approvals to comprehensive plan amendments and developments of regional impact.

Charles L. Siemon is a planning and planning law consultant who has provided professional services to public and private sector clients in more than 25 states and in the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico. He has extensive experience in state and federal trial and appellate courts on takings issues, civil rights, impact fees, condemnation of open space and other matters.

Featured Presenter

Valerie J. Hubbard oversees a variety of state planning initiatives, including state review of local comprehensive plans and DRIs, as well as implementation of growth management legislation. She worked extensively on the formulation of SB 360 (Infrastructure Planning and Funding Act) during the 2005 Florida Legislative Session.

David Jordan has represented the Department of Community Affairs since 1984. He presently supervises the Growth Management section of the Office of the General Counsel and serves on the executive council of the Environmental and Land Use Law Section.

Robert K. Lincoln concentrates his practice on land use permitting and litigation, and administrative law. He formerly served as an Assistant Professor of Urban Planning at Michigan State University, a Senior Research Associate at the Cantanese Center for Urban and Environmental Solutions, and an Associate Planner with Sarasota County.

Kenneth B. Metcalf assists developer and governmental clients with project planning and growth management strategies, including concurrency solutions. He previously worked with the Department of Community Affairs for 16 years.

Rebecca A. O'Hara represents her firm before Florida's legislature, courts and executive agencies on a variety of municipal matters, particularly land use and environmental issues. Before joining the League in 1999, she practiced environmental and land use law in the private sector.

Eric T. Olsen has practiced in the area of wetland regulation since 1990. He has been involved in the development of regulations governing environmental resource permitting, mitigation banking, wetland delineation and consumptive use.

David L. Powell practices land use and growth management, endangered and threatened species protection, and facility siting. He is involved in state and local land use approvals, including comprehensive planning, Development of Regional Impact review and approval, subdivision platting and other property rights issues. He is an adjunct professor at the Florida State University College of Law.

Mark A. Rothenberg advises both municipal and private sector clients regarding compliance with local zoning codes, their rights as to the development of neighboring properties, and their development entitlements. He frequently represents developers in obtaining approvals before municipal zoning boards.

Pamella A. Seay is the Chair for the Charlotte County Airport Authority, and is a member of the Charlotte County Punta Gorda Metropolitan Planning Organization. She served six years on the Florida Bar Professional Ethics Committee and is the author of "Ethics: New Meaning for an Old Idea."

Linda Loomis Shelley specializes in governmental, environmental and land use law and represents a variety of public and private sector clients before state, federal and local agencies. She was formerly the General Counsel for Governor Bob Graham and for the Department of Community Affairs, where she later served as Secretary.

David W. Wagner has held his position since 1999. Previously, he practiced in the area of local government law with special emphasis on land use law for approximately seven years. He also has a variety of legal experience, as a result of 20 years in the U.S. Army and two years in private practice in Gainesville.

Ronald L. Weaver has extensive experience advising landowners, development companies, and local governments on environmental, land use law and property rights. Significant accomplishments include representing 100 Florida developers on zonings, DRIs, plan amendments, concurrency, property rights and local governments in NEPA projects, including a $1.3 billion roadway and a $56 million people mover.
